Demand for Unvaccinated Blood is Real, Doctors Acknowledge Grumpily

"Young Blood" transfusions for Billionaires may also be Affected

Here's a Vice News article about new blood banks set up to provide unvaccinated blood:

A screenshot of a Vice News article snippet. The top navigation bar includes 'VICE' and links for 'Video', 'TV', 'News', 'Tech', 'Rec Room', 'Food', and 'World News'. The article title is '‘SafeBlood’ Hardliners Want to Set Up Unvaccinated Blood Banks'. Below the title is a sub-headline: 'Medics say that growing numbers of people are asking for transfusions of unvaxxed blood.' The author is identified as 'By Tim Hume'.

Anti-vaxxers are trying to create a new global infrastructure for the supply of unvaccinated blood, driven by conspiracy theories and pseudoscientific beliefs about the dangers of mRNA COVID vaccines.

The article goes on and on about how unscientific and ignorant is the demand for unvaccinated blood. What is interesting is that even doctors acknowledge a lot of demand for it:

“We have had a few requests for vaccine-negative blood and/or directed donations from unvaccinated individuals. We have said no to all of these requests,” Claudia S. Cohn, director of the blood bank laboratory at the University of Minnesota said in an email.

Michael Busch, president of the International Society of Blood Transfusions, said that he had been aware of such requests for more than a year. “It obviously started when the mRNA vaccines rolled out,” he said.

I doubt that the entirety of the demand is from regular people like you and me. Likely, the very rich people who can afford to allocate some young, healthy people's blood to themselves may pay an [insignificant to their net worth] premium for getting unvaccinated blood.

Even before the Covid pandemic started, billionaires spent tremendous amounts of money getting blood transfusions from young people, which supposedly makes old guys more youthful. It would not be a giant leap of imagination to conjure a rich person who decided to pay a premium for young Covid-unvaccinated blood.

Millionaires are dropping tens of thousands on 'young blood' transfusions and cryonic preservation. Here are 5 ways the wealthy are investing in trying to live forever

Katie Warren Aug 2, 2019, 8:45 AM

The doctors who spent the last two years advocating for “Covid vaccines” are unhappy about this trend.

medical experts spoken to by VICE World News suggested those efforts were unlikely to bear fruit. They said they are aware of growing requests for unvaccinated blood from anti-vaxxers in recent years, but were rejecting such requests.

Clearly, at this point, the demand for unvaccinated blood becomes impossible to deny, and commercial entities are sprouting to satisfy such demand. A warning to my readers: be wary of just signing up for the first company promising you access to “unvaccinated blood” for a fee. Scammers are everywhere, not just in the Pfizer and Moderna offices. They will take your fee but might not deliver the blood that you paid for.

Coincidentally, since 2021, there is a blood shortage for baffling and unexplainable reasons.
